

Blooming good helper

Kingsland Polymers, based at Old Potts Way in Shrewsbury have joined a long list of commercial sponsors that are continuing to support the Shrewsbury in Bloom initiative.

Christa Padmore, finance and administration director for Kingsland Polymers said:

“Now in our 12th year of trading plastic raw materials, following record results, Kingsland Polymers Limited is delighted to be able to give something back to the town by way of sponsoring the Porthill/Radbrook Green traffic island.

“When times are difficult, it is so easy to forget what a difference our environment can make to lift the stresses of the day, so the effort put in by the Shrewsbury in Bloom committee is very much appreciated and we should all strive to maintain our beautiful Town of Flowers.

“As a plastics raw material supplier, we are conscious of the fact that the plastics industry may not always receive the most positive press in respect of the environment, however as an essential part to industry, it has been moving - and will continue to move closer toward a more green and environmentally friendly approach.”

Chairman of the Shrewsbury In Bloom Committee, Councillor Mrs Jackie Brennand said: “I would like to thank Kingsland Polymers for their splendid gesture, which is most appreciated. The Port Hill traffic island looks magnificent, thanks to their generosity. Anyone who has an interest in commercial sponsorship may call Gary Farmer, Shrewsbury Town Council Operations Manager on 01743 257651”.
